NEWS FLASH

Northamptonshire Crimestoppers wins the Percy Hoskins Award funding, to the tune of £7,500 to deliver our performances of 'Skin Deep' and 'Last Orders', in Autumn 2018.

Improper interactions between men and women, fill our press and the social media feeds of our young people. We must find a way to ensure that they have a platform for debating what a healthy relationship should look like.

1 in 7 children and young people under the age of 18 will have lived with abuse. Latest statistics show a rise in the number of domestic violence incidents police are dealing with. There were up to nearly 650,000 cases in England and Wales in the year to March 2017.

In Essex our schools' tour of 'Power of Love' delivers life changing messages on healthy relationships, self-awareness and confidence. In Northamptonshire 'Skin Deep' tells Denny's story of life in the shadow of gang violence. Sexual images are taken by her boyfriend, that are then used to coerce and threaten her to stay with him.

Students that have seen our shows have a healthier attitude to relationships, are more likely to seek help in abuse situations and understand the legal implications of storing and distributing sexualised images of minors.

Dorset Police's

award winning multi-agency delivery of 'Last Orders' starts off our New Year. Previously 80% (852 students) stated our workshop changed their attitude to drinking, antisocial behaviour and resisting peer pressure.
